IOM'S COMPREHENSIVE APPROACH TO PREPAREDNESS, DISASTER RISK REDUCTION (DRR), CLIMATE CHANGE ADAPTATION

Federico SODA

Director, Humanitarian Response and Recovery (DHRR)

RAPID SHIFT: THE GROWING IMPACT OF THE CLIMATE CRISIS ON DISPLACEMENT

CLIMATE CHANGE REALITY

Record numbers of internally displaced persons in 2023 (75.9 million). Humanitarian needs continue to grow and are now in excess of 300 million people globally.

IOM'S RECOGNITION

The urgency to identify proactive and cost-effective measures to support States to address climate-induced human mobility and displacement.

COMPREHENSIVE APPROACH

IOM is taking a whole-of-organization approach to preparedness, DRR, and climate change adaptation.

IOM'S APPROACH TO PREPAREDNESS, DISASTER RISK REDUCTION (DRR), & CLIMATE CHANGE ADAPTATION

KEY PILLARS
IOM'S COMPREHENSIVE APPROACH

- Early Warning Systems
- Anticipatory Action
- National Adaptation Plan Support
- Capacity Building
- Partnerships
- Data for Action and Insight

EARLY WARNING SYSTEMS

Empowering communities with timely information to take action before disasters strike.

ANTICIPATORY ACTION

Proactive measures to minimize the impact of disasters before they occur.

NATIONAL ADAPTATION PLAN SUPPORT

Integrating human mobility considerations into national climate strategies.

CAPACITY BUILDING

Strengthening the resilience of communities and governments through initiatives like CADRI, MICIC and Words into Action.

PARTNERSHIPS

Collaborating with UN agencies, governments, civil society, and increasingly the private sector to maximize impact and integrate expertise and technical solutions.

DATA FOR ACTION AND INSIGHT

Leveraging IOM's recognized value in primary data collection to inform humanitarian responses while increasingly investing in insight and foresight tools that will enhance our organizational capacity to anticipate and better prepare for, respond to and resolve human mobility and displacement associated with disasters and climate change.

CALL TO ACTION FOR MEMBER STATES
